We will be hosting another industry call this Thursday, April 14 at 1:00pm with industry attorneys from Holland & Knight, Jessica Brown – an expert in Alaska alcohol law – and Christopher Slottee – an expert at Small Business Administration (SBA) programs. They will be covering and available to answer questions regarding:

Payroll Protection Program (PPP)
Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL)
Paid sick leave requirements

The current status of to-go curbside alcohol sales in Alaska
The current status of home delivery of alcohol in Alaska

If you need immediate assistance with filing for SBA loans – including PPP or EIDL – please email christopher.slottee@hklaw.com.

With all of the recent seclusion, we miss you!

Please join us with your smiling faces for our Zoom video call this Thursday at 1:00pm by using the following link:

Governor's Press Briefing Regarding Alcohol Delivery

Our President & CEO, Sarah Oates, has been working directly with Governor Dunleavy and his team throughout the day to implement the temporary relaxation of specific alcohol laws (currently effective through 11:59pm on May 11, 2020), in the interests of helping the hospitality industry during dire times, and in preserving public health by providing for increased social distancing options. His press release can be found here, and the specific language can be found on pages 12-13 of this document.

Please note that while this order is effective immediately, Alaska CHARR highly recommends that all applicable licensees wait until receiving official written notice from the Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Board before beginning any of the following activities contemplated in the disaster order:

- Bona fide restaurant or eating places (including those who hold beverage dispensary licenses) to deliver beer/wine/cider with an order of food from that restaurant
- Beverage dispensaries, restaurant or eating places, package stores, breweries, brewpubs, wineries/cideries, and distilleries to conduct curbside delivery of the types of alcohol normally allowed for sale by the respective license type

Important Note:

The ABC Board has an emergency meeting scheduled to consider adopting emergency regulations tomorrow, April 15 at 2:00pm. The board may impose additional restrictions and will be considering specific procedures to promote commerce while ensuring the continuation of responsible alcohol control and public health and safety during this crisis.

Economic Impact Surveys:

Finally, we know that you just recently were asked to fill out a survey for Alaska CHARR, but the more data that our industry organizations are able to collect, the better we can advocate for the resources that you need most. The National Restaurant Association is asking restaurants across the entire state of Alaska to fill out their survey here. The Anchorage Economic Recovery Task Force is asking for all businesses in the Anchorage area to fill out their survey here.

The Alaska CHARR team continues to work around the clock to do what we can to #saveAKhospitality!
